Problem Statement & Industry Context

Problem Statement

Many engineering students are not fully aware of the structured learning resources available for:

Data Structures & Algorithms

Programming

Database technologies

Technical interviews

Placement preparation

Existing Gap

There is a gap between the availability of learning resources and their actual reach and adoption among students on campus.

Available Resources

Student Reach & Adoption

Proposed Solution

The Campus Mantri Program addresses this gap by appointing student representatives who:

Community Development

Core Objectives of the Internship

These objectives guided my role as a Campus Mantri and helped me contribute effectively to the GeeksforGeeks community on campus.

01	Promote awareness of GeeksforGeeks resources and courses.
02	Encourage students toward coding interview and placement preparation.
03	Promote technical workshops and DSA-related sessions.
04	Coordinate between GeeksforGeeks and the student community.
05	Encourage participation in courses such as MongoDB.

06	Maintain GFG promotional activities on LinkedIn.
07	Gather student feedback and learning interests.
08	Document assigned tasks and activities.
09	Develop leadership and communication skills.
10	Contribute to technical community building on campus.

Learning Outcomes & Conclusion

Learning Outcomes

Through the Campus Mantri Program, I developed:

Leadership Skills through representing GFG on campus

Communication Skills through interaction with students and the GFG team

Event Management Skills through technical sessions and activities

Teamwork through coordination with students and fellow Campus Mantris

Technical Awareness of DSA, MongoDB and coding resources

Professional Networking through LinkedIn and GFG community engagement

Community Building
by encouraging students to participate in technical learning

Conclusion

The GeeksforGeeks Campus Mantri Program provided practical exposure to leadership, communication, technical community engagement, event coordination and professional networking, complementing my academic learning with real-world responsibilities.
